Safer Families is broke

Abuse program seeking new funding sources

By WENDY HANSCOM

"It's really been hell the last seven months. My children and I have been living a nightmare, not knowing whether I'd survive or he'd kill me. Even when he gets out I'll still be worried. But we can't run and hide anymore."

For seven months, this Oxford County woman, who asked to remain nameless, was threatened, harassed and even assaulted by her husband. During that time she turned to the Safer Families staff for help.

"I didn't have much self esteem and I had lost my trust in everything and everybody. But Safer Families has been good for me. They supported me on my decisions and they freed me."

The program helped her get the services she needed to break away from her abusive husband. He's currently serving jail time for assault and attempted rape.

But in order to continue helping the victims of domestic violence, Safer Families has got to find some money.

SF coordinator Lynn Mason has been unemployed since Jan. 31. Her original full-time position was cut to part-time in April 1993. SF has vacated its office at the health center.

The program has not received any state or federal funding since April. Other funds, from Town Meetings last spring, small private grants and other donations, were gone by the end of December.

Town Meetings begin

Budget increases loom

By WENDY HANSCOM

Annual Town Meeting season kicks off next week, and once again this year most area voters will find themselves confronted with proposed increases in municipal spending.

In the recessionary period from 1989 to 1993, local officials strove mightily -- and generally successfully -- to hold the line on town budgets.

But last year most towns once again increased their budgets, if only slightly. This year the trend continues.

West Paris was the only local town whose budget didn't go up at least slightly last year; this year the town selectmen are proposing a $45,000 municipal spending increase.

Elsewhere, the budgets for most SAD44-member towns are also likely to increase.

West Paris

West Paris starts off the local Town Meeting season on March 1. A detailed report of Tuesday's meeting is on page two.

Andover

Andover voters will be asked to approve town employee pay hikes and funds to finish establishing the town's transfer station.

The town's municipal budget will only increase a few thousand dollars if voters approve the selectmen's and budget committee's recommendations, according to Selectman Kathy Williamson.

"It will be up a little, basically because of the schools and things like the landfill closure," Williamson said. "There's no special projects other than the usual things that have to be done."

Newry

Newry's municipal spending will increase approximately 10 percent if voters endorse the selectmen's budget, but it's unlikely the town's mil rate will also rise, according to Selectman Steve Wight.

"We're asking for some money to continue Town Office renovations," Wight said. "We also looked at the (town-owned) grange hall and we decided we could put vinyl siding on it for about as much as we could paint it three or four times."

Development in the town has also increased the town's administrative work load, Wight said.

"There's some increase in administrative salaries caused by an increased work load," Wight said. "Most of it is due to the increase of taxpayers generated by the Summit Hotel."

Wight said Summit Hotel taxpayers will also likely offset any in-

Veteran telemarker rescues young snowboarder

"He was crying and saying 'I want my mom.'"

I told him his mom couldn't help him down here."

RICK BOUCHER

By WENDY HANSCOM

Lots of luck and the backcountry skill of a local telemarker combined to prevent a possible tragedy Friday -- when an 11-year-old snowboarder strayed out of bounds and became lost in the steep, wooded area behind Sunday River Ski Resort.

The episode was over quickly and ended happily, but the outcome could have been far different for young Travis Woods of Casco.

"This is a child with no fear," said Travis's mother Pam, "but when he came down off the lift and our eyes met, he burst into hysterical tears."

"I told him later, 'God or someone was watching over you and sent those people to you.'"

Rick Boucher, who skied into the woods to rescue the panic-stricken youngster, downplayed his own role in the episode. "It was just pure luck that we happened to be up there off the trail where we could hear him."

The incident took place Friday morning. Boucher and a skiing companion, Michael Daniels of Greenwood, had stopped near the top of the Lazy River trail and hiked up 100 feet to a rocky outcropping overlooking Barker Brook Basin.

As they stood enjoying the fine weather and the view back toward Bethel, Daniels thought he heard, very faintly, a scream.

"There were high-school racers on Locke Mountain, so at first I didn't think much about it -- I figured it was just kids fooling around, or even a bobcat," he said.

But then Daniels thought he heard another call -- and a distinct "help." "So I cupped my ears and we stood quietly and listened," he said.

Soon there was another cry. "This time we could hear enough to tell it was serious," he said. "This wasn't someone fooling around -- you could feel the fear in the voice."

The two men then called out in the direction of the distant screaming, to let the person or persons know they had been heard.

Then Boucher, who was in telemark gear, started skiing down through the steep woods in the direction of the calls. "We didn't have any idea what the situation was, how many people were involved, or whether anyone was injured and needed immediate attention," he said. "It seemed important to get to them as quickly as possible."

Daniels, who had left his alpine skis by the trail, hiked back down to the Barker Mountain Ski Patrol shack to summon help.

It's been a tough winter on pipes

Cross your fingers and wait for Mother's Day

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Drop by freezing drop, the unusually harsh winter weather is taking its toll underground.

"It's been just a dreadful winter," said Bethel Water District Superintendent Robert Saunders, who reports that the district has already had to deal with a half dozen frozen service lines.

That's well above the usual freeze-up rate, Saunders said. He predicted that still more residents will probably find themselves with frozen pipes in the coming weeks, as the frost works its way deeper into the ground.

And Bethel plumber Wayne Bean warned that the past weekend's brief warm spell may only make things worse -- by allowing the ground to soften and then driving the frost still deeper when the cold weather returns.

Just about everyone agrees that the number of freeze ups this season -- both underground and indoors -- is well above normal, no doubt as the result of the sustained, often record-breaking, cold.

"January was the worst month I've seen in 14 years," said Bean, who works primarily on inside plumbing.

Fuel lines are also freezing, said Jeri Greenwell of Brooks Brothers, "even those in places like sheds that would normally be protected."

Carlton Gardner of the Maine Rural Water Association said that districts statewide are reporting pipes freezing that have never frozen before, including sewer lines. Frost has driven to more than five feet deep in Auburn and as deep as nine feet in Aroostook County, he said.

The Bethel Water District measures ground and water temperatures, and the most recent readings (see box) are "substantially the coldest we've seen in recent years," Saunders said.

A quart of prevention

The district has been able to thaw some frozen service lines, but it's a messy and time-consuming process. And other lines cannot be thawed and must wait for Mother Nature to free them in the spring.

"It's usually within four or five days of Mother's Day," Bean said.

The most common way of preventing freeze ups is to keep a small amount of water (about a quart a minute is recommended) running through the pipe.

This precaution usually does the trick, Saunders said, but if most Water District customers kept their faucets running at that rate the system would soon run out of water.

And leaving the water running constantly over the winter would quickly shoot up the homeowner's water and sewer bills.

In most cases, Saunders said, leaving the tap on is not necessary, because most service lines are buried deeply enough that they are protected from freezing.

He advises that homeowners whose lines have frozen in the past, or those who plan to leave their homes for a few days or longer, contact the water district for advice on how to prevent freezing problems.

It is possible to make adjustments to fees, particularly if the district is told in advance about the situation, Saunders said.

Carlton, a project director for the rural water association, said that beyond keeping their taps running, there is little people can do at this point in the season -- except "keep their fingers crossed and wait for spring."

Water/ground temps

The Bethel Water District reports the following water and ground temperatures for Feb. 17.

Water	35 degrees
Ground
--3 feet	28 degrees
--4 feet	31 degrees
--5 feet	33 degrees
--6 feet	34 degrees

Ground temperatures are measured by sensors under Philbrook Street, where the surface of the ground is exposed and the subsurface is colder than most other locations.

PG MEANS 'PARENTIAL GUIDANCE' -- NOT 'PRINCIPAL'S GUIDANCE'

To the Editor:

School districts everywhere increasingly infringe on the right of parents to raise their children in the manner they deem most appropriate. Usually, when parents complain about this to a school board, they get the stock answer that parents today aren't living up to their responsibilities and that someone has to see that the kids' needs are being met. In no way can that excuse be used for the latest action by SAD44, for once again they have managed to chip away at our rights.

The School Board's decision to allow the showing of PG-rated movies in the middle school is a direct abrogation of parental rights and responsibilities, for they have now decided that the school is better able to choose what entertainment is proper for our children. Although they "passed the buck" to the principal, ultimately it is their responsibility and their blame to bear.

Somewhat, I fail to share the principal's enthusiasm for the students' use of the system, for all they've done is to teach the kids how to "best the system." If mom and dad won't let them see the movie, the school will. After all, it knows best, doesn't it?

A movie is rated "PG" because its content is such that a child should have parental guidance while viewing it, something that can only be done with the parent present. Allowing them to view it without at least seeking a parent's permission simply circumvents this procedure, one that was designed to protect the child. Any principal or member of the School Board who thinks that voiding the movie rating system somehow meets the needs of the students isn't qualified to do their job.

This decision by the School Board and the principal has effectively removed the basic right of all parents to oversee the entertainment in which their children participate.

I say that once again the Directors of SAD44 have shown their inability to exercise foresight and common sense. This issue should be reconsidered and handled much differently.

NEWRY SPAN NOT ON NEWS-MAP?

To the Editor:

I am puzzled by the fact that your paper made front page news of a proposed snowmobile bridge over the Androscoggin, but has said nothing about a very permanent new bridge being proposed for the Sunday River. This will be the first new crossing of the Sunday River in Newry in over 100 years. This is news. There are many interesting things going on in Newry and I believe the citizens of our town, as well as the community at large should be informed about them. Your masthead identifies your paper as the Bethel (Oxford County) Citizen. The last time I checked the map, Newry was still in Oxford County right there next to Bethel. Personally, I believe it would be appreciated by most of the citizens of Newry if we were more consistently included on the "news" map.

The Citizen reported on the proposed Sunday River bridge in a brief article on page three of last week's edition. More details will follow the public hearing scheduled for Monday, Feb. 28.

FINALLY REGISTERS -- BUT EVEN THAT DOESN'T HELP

To the Editor:

I would like to add my comments after the Feb. 14 voting was conducted. Last Monday morning, I was concerned enough about the turnout in the town of Bethel that I did the unspeakable -- I registered to vote for the first time.

My vote might be a valuable lesson: never trust the government on anything. Local, state, or federal. Disinformation can be a very powerful tool in the hands of those in power.

The local evil, hear no evil, and the speak no evil boys bought the town of a pretty cheap price. Some winning and dining of the selected few, plus the short train ride, secured the appropriate results at the town meeting. The still laughing at the one about the $30,000 a year cost of the bridge, but too long ago everyone around here was bent over double at the proposed casino in Albany. What next? I hear the new town meeting is a real possibility.

RAPE OF BETHEL

To the Editor:

We "No's" were well aware that it was a lost cause on Monday, the 14th, but if we'd been as diligent in getting out the voters, it well might have been a different story even if we didn't have train rides and other inducements to offer Bethel citizens.

I am sure the "No's" will have many opportunities to say "I told you so" in the future when our taxes rise and many of the things promised don't happen. By then, it will be too late to prevent the rape of Bethel. I feel it will prove to be a sad time for Bethel and Bethel's Main Street.

DANCE STUDIO THANK YOUS

To the Editor:

The call was for 8 a.m. Nov. 13, but they started to come at 7 -- these wonderful men and women -- to help resurrect the Children's Dance Theater -- burned down last December by teens smoking behind the studio on Main Street. No, it was not deliberate, but it was thoughtless. Another generation was making it right. They came with saws, hammers and shovels. It made me want to cry for joy. How do you thank such generosity? It's hunting season in Maine -- a very short special season to a lot of men and women -- and yet they were here ready to go.

Jim (Sysko) had come two days before to prepare the site for action. He and neighbor, Eddie (Ojeda) worked side by side, measuring, planning, whatever was needed so as not to waste precious time when the others arrived.

Son Doug arrived from Vermont by 7 and found Larry (Fox), Phil (Rolfe) and neighbor Tom (Wheeler) already here cutting down the hundred-year-old lilac -- (ah me!) -- that would obstruct the snow in the winter. I hope I can get a slip to replant somewhere else ... I was getting coffee, juice, donuts ready for their 10 o'clock break -- or whenever. I had ordered a coffee cake from the newly opened Hometown Bakery on Vernon Street, who incidentally also lost everything in the fire. When I went to pay for it, Lois (Kilroy) said, "I can't build, but I can cook, this is my contribution."

Mr. Music Man (Peter Lawton), arrived along with Patty (Parsons) and son Thomas (Jeff being out of town) and were luggin' and totin' along with the best of them.

And so it continued with different people helping along the way as their busy schedules allowed.

On Jan. 12, eight weekends later, we opened our doors to classes with a warm studio, lights, music and dance floor as scheduled.

There's still much to be done. Our dressing room, bathroom needs finishing. Our much needed mirrors, ballet barres are not in yet but time and patience will take care of that.

Safer Families

The Bethel Area Health Center helped support the program financially through January.

The health center also applied for money for the program through its Rural Health Initiative grant, but the funding was denied.

"It's truly unfortunate that we lost our funding," said Wende Gray, president of the health center board of trustees. "It's a program that can never be self-supporting."

"It's just done marvelously. We've really seen a lot of domestic violence victims get help. The volunteer effort has been outstanding. I think a lot of people see this type of program as a volunteer effort, but there's telephone bills, travel time, administrative costs, insurance and gas money -- that's where the cost comes in, but their funding rug has been pulled out from under them."

But Mason and SF's board are not abandoning the program.

"The advisory committee met at the end of January and decided to try and continue Safer Families," Mason said. "They were unwilling to see services stop to women and other victims of domestic violence in Oxford County. We're committed to local agencies in Oxford County, hospitals, police departments and churches, to do awareness trainings this spring."

Mason will continue to head up the program as a volunteer, but if additional money is not found she'll be forced to look for a paying job.

"For a period of time I'm willing to do it," Mason said. "That's how much I believe in Safer Families. I am willing to volunteer to do what we need to do to keep this going. I can't see myself or any of the volunteers picking up the phone and listening to a crisis and saying 'I'm sorry, there's nothing we can do for you.' In January, we opened up more cases than any other single month since we've been open."

SF is in the process of trying to become incorporated. Once incorporated the program may be eligible for state, federal and private grant money.

The program has already received some local support.

The health center is allowing Mason and SF volunteers to come in two-and-a-half days a week to use the center's phones to contact clients during February and March.

SF also uses the health center for evening meetings.

GTE awarded the program a small grant last week, to establish a new hotline. The new line will be in place sometime next month. Meanwhile, the health center is maintaining the current hotline -- 1-800-287-2292.

The Bethel Alliance Church has also volunteered office space at the church.

"We're really excited about that," Mason said. "We're already in Rumford and South Paris one day a week, but this gives us a Bethel base."

The program will also continue its fundraising efforts.

For the second year in a row, SF will ask area towns for money at annual Town Meetings.

A benefit breakfast is also scheduled for Feb. 26 at Skidder's on Main Street in Bethel.

"We're going ahead like we're going to be bigger and better than ever," Mason said.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Thursday, March 3, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Featured during the program portion of the meeting will be a celebration of oral history focusing on the memories of six Bethel area citizens over 80 years of age: Albert Cotton, Florence Hastings, Olive Head, Grace Morrill, Benton Swan and Randall Stevens. These six have together over 500 years of living in western Maine, and those attending will hear of their memories of floods, school days and their reaction to the impact of great national events including the Great Depression and World War II. The audience will also have an opportunity to ask questions as well. Anyone interested in attending this meeting is cordially invited to do so.

Periodically, someone attempts to answer the question that has been asked for generations: "Why study history?" This answer appears in the January issue of "History Matters," published by the National Council for History Education: "A civilization that does not pass its experience on to its young is doomed to be run by children, at least in the intellectual sense. Lacking familiarity with history, leaders and citizens will have only their own limited and unique life experiences upon which to draw when confronting personal and public questions, and more surely will repeat mistakes made by earlier generations, or fail to continue to improve upon successful solutions to common human problems. It is essential therefore, that students learn history during their 13 years of universal schooling. Although history's impact on daily life may not be immediately apparent as is, for instance, arithmetic, it is the foundation for judgment -- and a society whose members and leaders lack judgment is indeed in peril."

Bethel Water District and W'stock miss out on CBDG funding

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Two local towns came up dry in the latest round of Community Development Block Grant funding.

Only nine of the 94 communities applying for grants made the cut into the second phase of the most recent selection process.

Among the rejected towns were Bethel, where the Water District had reapplied for $160,000 to upgrade water pipes on Paradise, Broad and Mason streets; and Woodstock, which had applied for an unspecified amount of money to construct a fire pond at the municipal complex.

Bethel's recent application for a $400,000 CBDG infrastructure grant was not affected by last week's announcement. Town Manager Madeleine Henley said she expects to have word on that application by early next month.

Since 1991 Bethel has received $595 million in CBDG funding.

Town Meetings

Continued from

crease in municipal spending the mill rate close to last 10.2 mills.

Upton

Upton selectmen are still vying on the town's budget, according to Selectman Constance Gagon. "It will have a slight rise with our landfill situation normal expenses," Gagon said.

The town is still negotiating James River to purchase the landfill site, and plans to eventually set up a transfer station.

Last year voters approved a budget of $77,039, in municipal and school spending.

Greenwood

Greenwood selectmen are still working through the budget and Selectman Mark Lett declined to comment on the budget's status until after the evening's scheduled selectmen meeting. The town is also stilling for the auditor's report, said.

The budget process is complicated by a proposal to drop the town warrant to drop the goods user fees, Bartlett said. Last year, Greenwood collected $1,600 from brown and goods users' fees, Bartlett said. If the brown goods user voted out, selectmen will raise more money through the sale.

"The brown goods user only been in place for months," Bartlett said. "We see it stay in place for a year so we can get a true picture of how it works. We're also worried that if it stays out, we'll be one of the places around and people will ride the town will haul their own. We'll have to pay to get it out."

Gilead

Gilead selectmen are predicting a light increase in the town's budget but have not completed the building process, according to Selectman Gagon.

crease in municipal spending, keeping the mill rate close to last year's 10.2 mills.

Upton

Upton selectmen are still working on the town's budget, according to Selectman Constance Gagon.

"It will have a slight rise to deal with our landfill situation and normal expenses," Gagon said.

The town is still negotiating with James River to purchase the town's landfill site, and plans to eventually set up a transfer station.

Last year voters approved a town budget of $77,039, including municipal and school spending.

Greenwood

Greenwood selectmen are also still working through the town's budget and Selectman Marie Bartlett declined to comment on the budget's status until after Tuesday evening's scheduled selectmen's meeting. The town is also still waiting for the auditor's report, Bartlett said.

The budget process is further complicated by a proposal on the town warrant to drop the brown
goods user fees, Bartlett said.

Last year, Greenwood collected $1,600 from brown and white goods users' fees, Bartlett said.

If the brown goods user fee is joted out, selectmen will have to raise more money through taxation,
he said.

"The brown goods user fee has only been in place for eight months," Bartlett said. "We'd like to see it stay in place for at least a year so we can get a true figure.
We're also worried that if they vote
it out, we'll be one of the only free lances around and people from outside the town will haul their goods ere. We'll have to pay to get rid of it."

Selectman Fernand Corriveau.

"Some of the accounts will probably go up a little, like the highway account because of all the snow
we've had," Corriveau said.

"There'll be some increase in the cost of completing the transfer station," he said. "We got held up with the permits last year. That's the only two items that should go up. I really don't see much of an increase unless something drastic happens between now and town meeting."

Woodstock

Woodstock wraps up local Town Meeting season on March 28.

"The budget's going to be very close to last year's figure," Town Manager Vern Maxfield said.
"We're asking for a new fire truck and we're going to take a little bit more from surplus and state revenue sharing to reduce the commitment."

"If voters approve the tanker truck, we'll be in pretty good shape on equipment for quite a while," he said. "I'm shaving off a little bit
here and there to make the bottom line as close as possible to last year's figure."

Bethel

Bethel's annual Town Meeting is not held until June. The budget process has recently begun, and chances for an increase are good,
according to Town Manager
Madeleine Henley.

SAD44

Some SAD44 towns pay the district nearly 70 percent of their total budgets, but no school tax figures will be available until well after Town Meeting time.

The district's yearly budget process is currently underway. School Board directors may get their first look at the full budget proposal on March 14. Then a round of budget meetings in SAD44 member towns begins.

Superintendent of Schools Ronald Jenkins said the following budget workshops dates have been tentatively set: March 30, Andover;
April 6, Woodstock; April 13, Tel-star High School and April 25, approval of the final budget draft. The annual district-wide budget meeting has been tentatively scheduled for May 25, Jenkins said.

What the district will request for the overall budget is not known yet.
But so far early figures from the state indicate that the district may receive more state revenue than last year.

"Preliminary printouts from the state -- at this point I'm not willing to trust them very far -- indicate we'll be in a little better shape than in the past few years," Jenkins said.
"If the figure holds, then we'll get slightly more money (from the state) than last year."

SAD44 SCHEDULE CHANGE

The SAD44 School Board
voted last week to have students attend classes on Friday, March 18, formerly a teachers' workshop day.

The teachers' workshop was moved to the end of the school year. If no more storm days are used, the last student day of school will be June 15.

West Paris

Voters to have say on social service funds

By DUANE HAYES

At their annual meeting on March 1, West Paris voters will be asked to choose between a proposed budget of $342,645, as recommended by the board of selectmen, and an alternative budget of $348,707 that has been prepared by the town's budget committee.

The two figures came about as a result of feelings by a majority of the town's voters last March that there should be a greater choice for them to consider than just the recommendations of the selectmen.
The change was then voted in late in the Town Meeting when people saw that social service funding had been cut heavily by the town officials.

Resident Phelps Poland said at the time that the voters should be the ones who decide how much money
should be given to various organizations.

The two figures are shown in the town warrant published in this year's town report, item by item.

The two boards basically agreed on the biggest percentage of the articles, but under social services the selectmen are recommending monies for Pine Tree Transit and Androscoggin Home Health only,
but the budget committee is recommending that the voters approve a figure equal to 80 percent of what was appropriated for each service organization in 1993.

Whether the taxpayers decide to go with the selectmen's proposal

and that of the budget committee,
the total will mean an increase over the 1993 budget figure. The selectmen's budget is up by $33,372, while the budget committee has added $39,434.

Both totals are well below the expense that would be incurred if all the budget requests were approved
as they were submitted.

Selectman Howard Gurney said
last week, "If all requests from various departments and social service agencies were approved, town spending would increase by about $149,279 over last year."

Major expense items to be considered will include $60,000 for the operation of the town's transfer station, raising $45,000 and appropriating $10,000 from the Highway Block Grant Account for snow bills (including $4,285.19 for a 1993 deficit), appropriating $15,000 from the Highway Block Grant and raising $27,000 for highways and bridges, raising $10,000 for grading and tarring the Stearns Hill project completed last fall, and raising $43,000 to be placed in the tax account.

Also, the selectmen will be asking for the voters to approve the purchase of a 1994 Ford dump truck for $60,000. For this purchase they are recommending appropriating $30,000 from the Capital Reserve Account and borrowing up to $30,000 in a series note for the next five years at $6,000 per year starting in 1995.

Another request will ask the taxpayers to authorize an addition to the Town Office and garage building, at a cost not to exceed $30,000.

The board will also be asking for an appropriation of $70,000 from the Town's Undesignated Fund Account balance and $50,000 from 1994 excise taxes to help reduce the 1994 taxes.

Elections at the March 1 meeting will be to elect a town clerk, tax collector, treasurer, bookkeeper and registrar of voters with incumbent Dian Stinson running for re-election. Wade Rainey will be seeking another three year term as selectman, assessor and overseer of the poor. Road Commissioner Williard Keesh will run again for a three year term, which is a change from the old format of a one year term.
Philip Edmunds will be looking for another three years as water district director, and, as far as can be determined at this time, nominations from the floor will be needed to fill a three-year term on the SAB.
#17 School Committee to replace director James Johnston, who has decided not to run for re-election.

The only announced new candidate is Craig Moore-Dillingham, who will be opposing Keesh for road commissioner.

The March 1 meeting will be held in the Alumni Gym at the Agnes Gray School and start at 7 p.m.

North Newry

By GIL SEELEY

The Newry Recreation Committee and Sunday River Ski Resort will co-sponsor a Skating Party on Thursday, Feb. 24, from 7 to 8 p.m. at the rink at White Cap Lodge. Free hot chocolate will be served and at 8 o'clock there will be a drawing for two $10 gift certificates to any Sunday River concession. Skaters will want to stay for Sunday River's biggest fireworks display of the season. So gather up some friends or the kids and join up for a fabulous night out! Have no skates? Skate rentals are available at White Cap Lodge for $5.

Happy Birthday to Karlene Bachelder on her 60-something day. "I refuse, as I age, to deny my years... Was it at 30? 45? ...Or the one when I came down with the flu? ... Or when I said goodbye to someone close... No, I think I'll keep them all... the bad years, the good years... To deny one would be to deny myself... because added up... They are my life."

Our Newry post mistress Crystal Lake would like to thank all who came to the "open house" at the Post Office last Saturday, the 5th. Everyone enjoyed refreshments and good conversation. It was nice to have a chance to know each other personally.

The Newry Mothers' Club met Feb. 14 at the Town Building. Gil Seeley opened the meeting with a prayer of St. Valentine's Day. Secretary-Treasurer Olive Anderson brought the finances up to date, read the notes of the last meeting, reported on cards sent to shut-ins. She also told of sending a card to Roger Hanscom who is in the Rumford hospital. Karlene Bachelder reported on having bought some Xmas lights for next year's tree.

The Upton ladies invited the Mothers' Club members to their Mother-Daughter Banquet sometime in May, and it was accepted.

Olive Anderson won the mystery prize. A sum of money was voted on and donated to the Ride-in drive in Rumford.

Next meeting will be March 14 at the Town Building, 7:30 with Shirley Keith, Sylvia Wight and Olive Anderson on the snack committee. A bingo game will be the social hour. The meeting was adjourned and Valentines were exchanged and refreshments enjoyed.

Bea Lowell, Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark and Gil Seeley of the "Newry Bowling Gang" were at the Oxford Lanes, Rumford, one day last week. Karlene was high on both the triples and singles. There was no spectacular scoring during the game! Karlene had one spare, Gil had one strike and Bea had one spare. So they made up for it with having a good lunch...

Congratulations to Jennifer Bowie for being an honor student in Grade 12.

The Windy Valleys Sno-Mobile Club hosted a Sebago club for trail rides on Saturday, Feb. 12. Leon Dunn took the morning group to Andover and Lake Umbagog. Herb Kittredge spent the afternoon with a group in Grafton Notch State Park. In the evening an oyster stew and pollack supper was held in the Grange Hall for the riders and for the area snowmobile clubs. About 65 attended.

The following Sunday, Bill, Owen

and Sylvia Wight rode into Rumford by snowmobile to the Annual Ride-in to benefit the Oxford County Association for the Retarded Children. The club wishes to thank everyone who contributed so generously. God Bless.

Task Force notes:

By NATALIE TIMBERLAKE

NTL, education and retirement are among agenda items when the Bethel Area Task Force meets at Bingham House at 7 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 27.

Maintaining the presence of NTL as a part of the area's economy was the stimulus for the formation of the Task Force. NTL continues to develop, locally, under the management of Kathi Schandelmeyer. She has reported that the summer of 1994 will see a 12-week program here.

NTL book sales are now under the Bethel umbrella. The books are being packed and shipped from national headquarters in Virginia, but the inventory management and sales are part of Schandelmeyer's responsibility.

The Reader Roundtable attracted participants from throughout the SAD44 community. Several members of the education group of the Task Force as well as the education committee of West Parish Congregational Church have supported this. The group has met four consecutive weeks to discuss four topics about education in Maine: vocational education, citizenship, life-long learning and basic skills. Discussion centered on articles in each week's "Maine Sunday Telegram." The group will meet again Sunday, Feb. 27, at 4 p.m. at the church. They will focus on how the members wish to continue to involve themselves and others of the area in support of education. That meeting will be closely prior to the Task Force meeting, and is expected to be bringing an interesting report to Task Force.

The retirement committee met earlier this month to discuss next steps in developing living arrangements for older residents who are presently served by housing facilities. In recent years this lack has seen several local people relocate to other facilities. A professional survey of feasibility has encouraged the local group to move ahead.

'Joy of Skiing' picnic

The American Lung Association and Sunday River Cross County Ski Center will hold the 7th annual Joy of Skiing event on Saturday, Feb. 26. "Joy of Skiing" is a chance to enjoy the Maine outdoors, cross-country ski on groomed trails, and enjoy food served trail-side.

Designated dining locations on the cross-country ski trail system offer a progressive picnic on skis. "A number of our old favorites are back, like freshly made donuts on the trail," said Susan McBride, who is helping to coordinate the event. Each hour between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. a different dining station will open with a hot entree served at noon at the covered bridge.

A $6 fee, in addition to the normal trail fee, covers all food throughout the day. Proceeds will go toward the American Lung Association of Maine. For more information, call the Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center at 824-2410.

Important Tax Deadlines - 1994

This article is brought to you by Jane Gray, CPA

Important tax filing deadlines are approaching. Cut and save this checklist of the most common filing requirements for business and individuals.

- February 28 - Businesses must file information returns (such as 1099s) with the IRS; employers must send W-2 copies to the Social Security Administration.
- March 1 - Farmers or fishermen who did not make 1993 estimated tax payments must file 1993
income tax returns and pay taxes in full.
- March 15 - 1993 calendar-year corporation income tax returns are due.
- April 15 - Individual income tax returns for calendar year 1993 are due unless you file for an automatic extension.
- April 15 - 1993 partnership information returns are due.
- April 15 - 1993 annual gift tax returns are due.
- April 15 - This is the deadline for making a 1993 IRA contribution.
- April 15 - The first installment of 1994 individual estimated tax is due.
- June 15 - The second installment of 1994 individual estimated tax is due.

If you can't file a tax return on time, you may request an extension from the IRS. The extension request must be filed by the return's due date. An extension gives you more time to file a return; it does not give you additional time to pay any taxes
still owed.

Contact our office for assistance with any of your tax filing requirements.

BLANCHE B. SCHNEIDER

Blanche B. Schneider, 92, died Friday, Feb. 18, 1994, at her residence in East Andover. She had lived in East Andover until 1942 when she moved to Middleboro, Mass., and then returned to the family homestead in 1987.

She was born in Dedham, Mass., on Dec. 24, 1901, and was the daughter of Calvin and Marie (Junk) Crooker. She attended schools in Andover.

She was past vice president of the East Andover Community Club and a longtime member and past superintendent of the Sunday School of the First Congregational Church and had held the Sunday School in the East Andover School House before the church had Sunday School facilities. She had enjoyed fishing and the outdoor life in her younger years.

She was married in Dedham, Mass., on Aug. 14, 1924, to the late Erville W. Schneider, who died on July 18, 1966.

Survivors include three daughters: Mrs. Betty Moore and Miss Beatrice Schneider, both of Andover and Mrs. Gilbert (Phyllis) Silver of Havana, Ill.; one brother, George Crooker of East Andover; two sisters, Mrs. Pauline Colby of Pittsfield, N.H., and Mrs. Roy (Louise) Leach of Arthurette, N.B., Canada; nine grandchildren; 18 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by a son, Erville Schneider Jr., who was killed in action during the Korean War and a brother, William Crooker of East Andover.

Funeral services were held Monday, Feb. 21, at the First Congregational Church, Andover, with Pastor Jane Rich officiating. Those who desire may contribute to the Memorial Fund of the First Congregational Church, Andover, ME 04216, in her memory.

Boucher traversed the rugged area for a quarter of an hour before spotting Travis on the top of a ledge between Locke and Barker mountains.

When he made his way to the ledge he found an uninjured but very frightened little boy.

"He was crying and saying 'I want my mom.' I told him his mother couldn't help him down here," Boucher said, "and to just calm down and he'd be OK."

Boucher gave Travis water, then yelled back to Danielsback at the outcropping, letting them know that everything was under control and that he'd try to bring the boy up.

Boucher gave his poles to Travis, took off his own skis and used them to break a trail for the two back up the mountain.

"It was hard going," he said, "very, very steep, and the snow in places was halfway up my chest."

Boucher also began to read the Riot Act to his captive audience, stressing the dangers of skiing out-of-bounds -- but then he changed tactics.

"I realized he was already miserable enough," Boucher said. "So I began to joke with him to get his mind off all the negative stuff. I told him he had been reading too many snowboard magazines. By the time we were back at the top he was fine."

It took a half an hour for the pair to work their way out.

At the top, ski patrollers checked Jason, then sent him down on the lift to Ski Patrol Headquarters, where he was examined again and sent off to find his mother, who was at the mountain helping to chaperone the Lake Region High School ski team.

Wrong turns

Travis said later that he became lost when he tried to cut through the woods to get from one trail to another at the top of the mountain. But the other trail wasn't where he expected it to be, and after hitting a few trees he decided to abandon his snowboard and try to hike out.

But again he couldn't find his way.

"He was pretty confused," Boucher said. "His track before he reached the ledge was becoming very erratic."

After Travis took off his snowboard, "the snow was up to my waist," he said. "I kept going to my left. Then there was a big ledge and I hiked up it. Then I started screaming."

He estimated he had been calling out for an hour before the two men heard him.

Andy Robidoux, director of the Sunday River Ski Patrol, said that in an average year two or three people become lost out of bounds at the mountain, "usually hot shots who want to check something out, but don't really stop to think about how they're going to get back to the trail. They can quickly find themselves in a world of trouble."

Boucher thinks that's just what happened to the youngster. "He was thinking about the run, not about how he was going to get out."

Lost and found

"He probably would have been found eventually," Boucher said, "but it would have been a very long day for him, and if he had to spend the night in those wet clothes he would have been in big trouble."

Robidoux said there are many false lost-person alarms at skiways, usually when someone fails to show up at a meeting place and their companions assume the worst. But when a lost-person report seems genuine, he said, Sunday River immediately musters all available personnel and equipment to find them.

So far, he said, everyone who has been lost has eventually been found safe and sound.

Lesson learned?

Boucher is no stranger to the world far from the groomed trail. Now the owner of Mahoosuc Mountain Sports in Bethel, the Auburn native has skied extensively in the backcountry of the Rockies, the Alps and in Asia.

Boucher -- whose own son, Logan, was born this winter -- said he sensed in Travis a kindred spirit. "The kid's an adventurer, but he wasn't ready for this one. I told him it's OK to do stuff, but you've got to be prepared. I hope now he's learned that lesson."
